100% Placement Again Achieved for Graduating AIM Students

Dr. David Krause, Applied Investment Management program director said, “Since the AIM program was created in 2005, it has been our mission to provide Marquette University’s undergraduate students the opportunity to integrate the financial principles they learn in the classroom along with relevant internships and investment experiences so that they may become proficient and ethical investment professionals.”

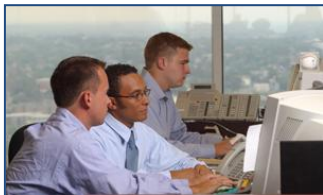

Dr. Krause continued, “We have been true to our mission which I believe has allowed us to achieve an outstanding placement record for our AIM students over the years. I am again pleased to report that we have a 100% career placement for the students who graduated in December 2010 and May 2011 from the AIM program.”

“The following list of the recent AIM graduates displays the firm and city where the alumni will be working,” Dr. Krause added. “We are sincerely grateful to the companies that have provided internships and career opportunities for our students the past seven years. And best of luck to the AIM graduates in their new positions.”

Career opportunities for students majoring in finance and participating in the AIM program include: security analysis, corporate treasury operations, risk management, credit analysis, consulting, investment banking, mergers and acquisitions, sales and trading, commercial banking, private equity, and financial wealth management. “We have over 120 AIM graduates that are working across the United States, and for that matter, around the world,” Dr. Krause stated. “Our AIM alumni have found success in all areas of finance.”

Summer Internships for the AIM Students in the Class of 2012

Dr. David Krause, AIM program director commented, “Each of the students enrolled in the spring AIM course - FINA 4310 – has already been involved with their summer internship. Similar to the AIM placement rate for our graduates, we have a perfect record in securing internships for our rising seniors.”

The internship opportunities are with different types of finance firms - including asset managers, private equity firms, investment banks, consulting firms, and private wealth managers. As shown below, the firms are geographically diverse and are located in Milwaukee, Chicago, Seattle, and New York.

Dr. Krause continued, “The AIM program provides employers with bright, educated, and motivated investment research and asset management professionals. We are very grateful to the many financial firms who partner with us in providing internships. Our students benefit from summer internships and we know that many employers return year after year to seek out talented students. It is a mutually beneficial arrangement.”

Recruiting Already Beginning for the Students in the Class of 2012

Dr. Krause said, "The students in the Class of 2012 are working at their summer internships around the U.S. and will be returning to campus in mid-August. Many of them have updated their resumes and are anxious to begin their career search. Please contact me if you are interested in learning more about the AIM students in the Class of 2012."

During their senior year the students in the AIM program continue to take various finance and accounting courses. "The AIM curriculum prepares a student to take and pass the CFA Level I exam in June immediately following graduation," Krause said. "Many financial services firms are requiring entry-level employees to pursue the CFA designation as a condition of employment. It is considered by some to be the ticket that is needed to get into the investment profession. I believe that a large part of our success has been the ability of AIM graduates to take and pass the CFA Level I exam before they start their first day of work."
